Exchanging Time Mentorship Program

V1 05.05.2017

Exchanging Time is a new program established by Testing Grounds.

The notion of exchange is important. We are asking for something and offering something in return. Our aim is that the exchange is equal, and in turn, a valuable experience for both parties.

Testing Grounds is seeking an emerging artist, curator, producer or arts worker to assist and be involved with the following:

- Exhibition openings and other art-related events;
- Invigilation;
- Occasional front-of-house work;
- installing and de-installing;
- ...other areas of interest seen to be a beneficial experience.

In exchange, Testing Grounds will provide in-kind professional mentoring and creative development support:

- Developing curatorial frameworks;
- Audience engagement and accessibility;
- Advice on installing and production;
- Networking and industry insight;
- Writing copy and marketing collateral;
- Understanding infrastructure;
- Budgeting and project management.

The specifics:

- The role includes evening work with a maximum expected commitment of 10 hours a month.
- In exchange Testing Grounds will offer two face-to-face meetings a month, plus communication and advice when required.
- The position will be awarded to an ambitious individual who is currently making creative projects in the public realm and seeking to build a long-term career in the arts.

Please send a short description of your areas of interest and an overview of relevant experience to arie@theprojects.com.au
